Art Unit: 1632

1. Restriction is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 and 372.

This application contains the following inventions or groups of inventions which are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

In accordance with 37 CFR 1.499, applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single invention to which the claims must be restricted.

Group I, claim(s) 18, 24-35, 37 and 38, drawn to a genetic construct comprising a nucleotide sequence of interest (NOI) and splice-function element that allows translation of the NOI ORF in target cells but no translation in non-target cells, a vector comprising said construct and a cell comprising said construct.

Group II, claim(s) 36, drawn to a protein obtained by expression of a genetic construct of group I.

Group III, claim(s) 39 and 41, drawn to a construct of vector of group I for use in therapy, and a pharmaceutical composition comprising said construct or vector.

Group IV, claim(s) 40, drawn to use of a construct or vector of group I in the manufacture of a medicament whose physiological effect is restricted to a target cell population and for treating a disease.

Group V, claim(s) 19-23 and 42-46, drawn to a method of selectively expressing a nucleotide sequence of interest (NOI) in a target cell population.

It should be noted that the newly added claims 18-40 have been renumbered to claims 24-46 because claims 18-23 have already existed.

2. The inventions listed as Groups I-V do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, they lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons: The common special technical feature of groups I-V is a genetic construct comprising a nucleotide sequence of interest (NOI) and splice-function element that allows translation of the NOI ORF in target cells but no translation in non-target cells. Guo et al., 1993 (Nucleic Acids Research, Vol. 21, No. 20, p. 4762-4768), discloses a cis-acting critical element for regulated alternative splicing is located within exon 7 and the adjacent upstream intron of the rat beta-tropomyosin (beta-TM) gene. The exon 7 and its flanking intron sequences suppress expression of exon 7 and flanking heterologous exons derived from adenovirus in non-muscle cells (e.g. abstract). Thus, the common special technical feature of groups I-V is not contributed over the prior art by the present invention. Therefore, groups I-V do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.
